

Before making any decision, a human resources professional must dig and get the "true" facts that relate to the problem presented. Care must be taken to avoid hearsay or secondhand information and to get firsthand, credible information.